SEAFOOD COMMISSION

No Damage to Reefs in Dredging

Commercial dredging of oyster reefs in the Gulf of Mexico will not damage live oyster reefs, according to a report by the Sea Food Commission. The report, which was the result of a study by the commission's scientific committee, was issued by the commission's executive committee.

The study was conducted by the commission's scientific committee, which was headed by Dr. A. E. Hopkins, biologist at the Gulf Marine Research Laboratory at Ocean Springs. The committee's report was based on a survey of the reefs in the Gulf of Mexico, which was conducted by the commission's scientific committee in 1951.

The survey revealed that the reefs in the Gulf of Mexico are in good health and that commercial dredging will not damage them. The survey also revealed that the reefs in the Gulf of Mexico are a valuable source of oysters and that they should be protected.

The commission's executive committee has decided to support the survey's findings and to recommend that commercial dredging of oyster reefs in the Gulf of Mexico be continued.

STATE OIL AND GAS BOARD

Drilling of Off-Shore Well

Representatives of the State Oil and Gas Board, Supervisor H. M. Morse (center) and Chief Petroleum Engineer J. K. Wright (left), recently inspected the seismic survey of the Mississippi Sound conducted by the Gulf Refining Company preparatory to the drilling of the state's first off-shore well. Wright and Morse are shown studying a graph on which are recorded sound waves with Ben Wiley, chief of the 30-man survey crew.

Drilling of Mississippi's first off-shore oil well drew closer today with completion of a seismic survey of the Mississippi Sound by the Gulf Refining Company.

Supervisor H. M. Morse of the State Oil and Gas Board, and J. K. Wright, chief petroleum engineer, were on hand for the final stages of the seismic survey and witnessed the "shooting" of the last profile line along the Mississippi-Alabama boundary.

Morse and Wright spent the day inspecting various phases of the operation. They congratulated the crew on the speed with which the survey was completed and expressed satisfaction with measures employed by Gulf to protect Mississippi's seafood industry. A representative of the State Seafood Commission accompanied the "shooting" party each day to make certain there were no slips-ups in the safeguards established to protect the seafood industry.

"This operation, the largest survey ever conducted in Mississippi, could mean a great deal to the state," Morse said. "Everyone will watch with interest the drilling of the first off-shore well."

Exploration of that portion of the 800,000-acre lease, held jointly by Gulf and the Melben Oil Company, lying within the sound

AUTO REVENUE

Forty million motorists will pay an estimated $5,000,000,000 a year to local, State and Federal tax collectors, according to the American Automobile Association, which pointed out that the new automobile taxes are being proposed every day.

and contains valuable deposits of shells for commercial use," Gex declared.

The dredging contract was awarded in February, 1951, to Heartland, he said, as the highest and best bid of three bids received. It was let on unanimous vote of the five-man commission, he pointed out.

"When the contract was let, the price we got—10 cents per cubic yard—was the highest of any price paid for dead reef shells in any of the Gulf Coast States," declared State Rep. Reece Bickerstaff, Gulfport, who is attorney for the commission.

Dredging of the reef for oysters was not begun until the sea food commission decided from information received from Dr. Hopkins and also James N. McConnell, Chief of Division of Oysters and Waterbottoms of Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, who is considered the leading source on water-bottoms in the Gulf Coast Area.

McConnell told the commission, Gex said, that the silt created by dredging of dead reefs usually is dissipated within 400 feet of the dredge.

In a week-long inspection of the dredging at Buoy Reef, Meco Filippich, Chief Inspector of the Seafood Commission, reported that no silt was found beyond a radius of one mile of the dredge.

The nearest live reef to the dredging is Pass Marianne reef which is four miles away.

Dredging into the deposits of shell on Buoy reef have reached a depth of 17 and one-half feet, Rutledge Caldwell, deputy seafood commission inspector stationed at the dredging rig, reported.

Dr. Hopkins said that the shells, which could be easily crumbled, were of oysters which existed on the reef "before white men had settled the coast."

The shells from the depth at which the dredging was in progress, he said, were of oysters which "died of old age." Most oysters were three to eight years old when they died, he said. Some oysters were as long as 10 inches.

Shells taken from the reef are being shipped by Heartland to a cement plant at Baton Rouge, the seafood commission declared.

None of the $360,000 appropriation made by the 1948 Legislature to replant oysters on the hurricane-damaged reefs on the Gulf Coast was used on Buoy Reef, commission officials said.

Gex estimated that at the present rate of dredging of the dead reef that the seafood commission will get $100,000 this year for cultivation of other reefs.

Some other Gulf States, he said, have received as much as $500,000 a year from commercial dredging of dead reefs.

The commission now has underway a project to test three ways in which to cultivate oysters. Three areas of five acres each have been established in Pass Marianne reef for the test.

The bottom of two of the areas were completely cleaned by dredging. One of the areas will be left bare and the other replanted with seed oysters.

In the third area, the oyster bottom will be "plowed," to separate and scatter the oyster clusters on the bottom.

All five oysters taken off the reef from the two cleaned areas are being replanted on Square Handkerchief reef off Buoy Reef.

UNSAFE AUTOS

Mississippi Safety Council, Officially chartered November 1949, is in violation of the state laws to have an unsafe automobile in Mississippi and to drive on the streets and highways.

Efforts of the Mississippi Safety Council and the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, in cooperation with other safety groups and the National Highway Traffic Safety Council, are directed toward promoting safer vehicles and, as an important means of reducing traffic accidents.

"Traffic officers in the cities and highway patrolmen have been reminded to be especially alert for obviously unsafe automobiles—those with poor brakes, cracked or obscured windshields, and improper lights, and for those drivers who show a wanton disregard for public safety laws," an official declared.

Officials emphasized the seriousness of the warning by pointing out that eleven percent of the fatal traffic accidents during last year was attributed to cars with mechanical defects of one type or another.

"It is not a matter that can be taken lightly," declared A. S. Windham, Executive Director of the Council. "An inspection has shown that one out of every three vehicles checked had some obvious and hazardous condition."

Captain Windham urged every motorist in Mississippi to make an immediate check of brakes, lights, steering mechanism and tires, the most dangerous features of an automobile if allowed to degenerate into poor condition. He said windshield wipers, muffler, window glass, horn, rear and stop lights and rear-view mirror should receive very close attention.

"This month, marking the beginning of vacations for many families and the observance of the Memorial day weekend, is the logical time for being sure that all automobiles and motor vehicles are in safe mechanical condition," Windham declared.

Windham cautioned that "automobile owners who take precautions now will be insuring a safe summer for themselves, their loved ones and their neighbors—that the life that is saved by a little caution may be your own or the life of a loved one."

EARLY SETTLERS' SAGA IS RECALLED

A saga of the early settlement of Adams County was recalled with the gathering of descendants of the Jersey Settlers of Ogden's Mandamus at Kingston. The group was organized in April, 1940 and the history was compiled by Henry B. Eaton, one of the descendants. The membership is composed of descendants and relatives of the families who sailed down the Atlantic Coast from New Jersey and up the Mississippi River to the point where it is joined by the Homochitto River. They settled on the 20,000 acre land grant from the King of England known as Ogden's Mandamus.

HATS OFF!

And a special Girl Scout salute to the Dupaquiers of Ten Oaks Farm for allowing us to picnic on their grounds... to Christ Church Parish School for the use of their barbecue pit and the promise of shelter had the rains come.

TROOP REPORTS

Intermediate Troop 1
Rose Coward, Scribe
Patrol 1 found out at the last minute that it could not go to the picnic spot planned on, so each member suggested a different place, but we finally decided on a grassy spot among the trees at Joe's Bayou.

We had our lunch and had a lot of fun playing dodge ball. Mrs. Coward went with us.

Patrol 2, named the "Bluebirds," went on a cook-out at Dupaquier's. We were taken to our destination by car, then hiked through the pasture, picking blackberries, until we found a place to build a fire. Mrs. Chamberlain taught us how to build it properly from certain kinds of wood. Then came the process of peeling onions, causing us to cry, and the browning of the meat for our pot of spaghetti. And it was really good!

After we had eaten and picked up the refuse, we were careful to see that the fire was well put out. Then we went back to the stables where Mrs. Chamberlain keeps her good-natured horse, Rocky. She consented to let each of us ride him and we were delighted. But despite the sugar lumps given Rocky, we're sure he was glad only nine of us were there.

LWV HOLDS BOARD MEETING

The League of Women Voters of Bay St. Louis had its first board meeting of 1952-53 Monday, May 5 at the home of Mrs. E. P. Kirkpatrick.

The president, Mrs. Paul Miller, was absent due to illness and Mrs. Kirkpatrick presided.

Those present were Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Paul Loup, newly elected treasurer, Mrs. John Husband, Mrs. Ernest Samuel and Mrs. Al Weinfurter and Mrs. James Joyce, newly elected board members.

Mrs. Weinfurter, membership chairman, reported on the recently completed finance drive and said that the results had been most gratifying since a total of forty new members had joined during the drive, making a total membership of well over a hundred.

She wished to give special recognition, she said, to members of her committee, namely Mesdames J. DeBlanc, C. Gremillion, M. Kohler, R. de Montluzin, Al Landers, R. Calogno, J. Joyce and E. Kirkpatrick. Mrs. Weinfurter said that although the drive was officially over, new members would be welcome at any time, and asked that the platform of the league, that is, intelligent and informed non-partisan participation in government be remembered.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick read the program for the first state league convention which will be held in Natchez on May 12-13. There will be nine members of the Bay St. Louis league attending.

The program will include two business meetings, a luncheon at which the Natchez league will entertain, a tour of Natchez, ending with a cocktail party at Oakland, the home of Mrs. Al Grating, and a formal dinner on the hotel roof at which the Honorable Heber Lader will be the speaker.

Mrs. Ernest Samuel gave a report on the national convention in Cincinnati. The meeting lasted four days and was a miracle of efficiency and order. Nine hundred fifty delegates, from every state in the Union and Alaska met, and in an atmosphere of keen intellectual endeavor and complete democratic accord thrashed out the procedure for the next two years. There were many round table discussions as well as general meetings, and a panel discussion on "What Makes People Think."

Keneth Galtbreath, noted economist from Harvard University, spoke at the banquet on the "Limits of Our Capacity." Mrs. Scott reported on the legislation in which the league had been interested during the last two years. But of course the high spot of the entire convention was on Thursday night when the five presidential candidates met at the Taft Auditorium to answer the questions that hundreds of thousands of people throughout the country had decided they wanted answered. The auditorium was thronged with people, the stage was crowded with microphones and cameras and sound trucks, etc. Mrs. John Lee, president of the National League provided, and John Daly was master of ceremonies.

Mr. Harriman, Senator Kefauver, Senator Kerr, ECA Administrator Hoffman, Mr. Stassen and Governor Warren answered questions on domestic and foreign policy. The panel was a spectacular success, with popular enthusiasm seemingly for the most part for Ike.

NEW DEFENSE BONDS BEING OFFERED BEARING HIGHER INTEREST RATES

Rex I. Brown, State Advisory Chairman of the Defense Bond Division, has announced that the U. S. Treasury is offering immediately a revised Series E Bond, bearing 3 per cent interest, and two new bonds, Series J and K, bearing 2.76 per cent interest, to replace Series F and G Bonds. A new Series H Bond similar in yield to the new E Bond, but a current income bond will go on sale June 1.

Brown, commenting on the distinguished service the Savings Bonds Program has rendered, said "Many new homes, thousands of new automobiles, new farm machinery, and many boys and girls equipped with a college education are the results of this wonderful thrift program. Fifty-eight billion dollars' worth are in the hands of the people today, of which $34.8 billion are E Bonds—$300 million in E, F and G Bonds are held by the people of Mississippi.

The changes today are another step in the Treasury's long range planning to make these bonds more useful for both the savers and investors.

"Defense Bonds are a better investment than ever and more and more people of Mississippi will be saving through them and investing their savings in them," Mr. Brown concluded.
